A MAN WHO IS LAUGHED AT.

The STAR was certain that Claus Spreckels, on his arrival in Washington, would be as amusing as Artemas Ward's kangaroo, and it is not disappointed. Mr. Spreckels began to talk to the reporters as soon as they came within range, and the more he ran : the mouth the more he increased the harmless gaiety of the press and of the American law-makers, "There is great to do over the occupation and improvement of Pearl Harbor," said this engaging gabbler, "and there seems to be a total lack of appreciation of the nature of that harbor." As if this was not enough to touch the risibles of men whose Government had sent its most accomplished naval, army and engineer officers here to survey that harbor, and who knew more about it than Spreckels in his native ignorance ever dreamed of, the grotesque commentator had to go on and say: "Entrance to the harbor will have to be blasted through a coral reef at great expense. If vessels of the United States should try to emerge from the harbor in face of a single formidable ironclad they would probably be ham mered to pieces,"

Excuse these smiles! The United States have the authority of one o their admirals and two of their generals including the present commander of the American army; and the evidence of their engineers, to show that Pearl Harbor could be made, by a mere trifle of expenditure, one of the most perfect ports in the world. It is completely land-locked so that a coaling and military station could be readily de fended, and is spacious en ugh for the navies of Europe and America combined; while the removal of the narrow strip of coral at the entrance would be boy's play to a dredger and to a man with mild explosives. Touching the absurdity of American vessels being hammered to pieces in trying to get out of the entrance channel, somebody should tell Mr. Spreckels that our nava forces would not be caught napping morning from the receiving ship Independence at Mare Island, and ordered to take passage inland in time of war, but would have patrol ships on duty outside of all threatened ports; that the appearance of a hostile vessel on the horizon would be the signal for our fleet to cast loose; and that harbor entrances are usually defended by guns heavy enough to keep a maritime enemy at a distance. Spreckels apparently has never heard of such things, and is in sad need of a primer of the defensive arts, a work which some military or naval man at Washington should hasten to put at his disposal with an alphabet to read it by.

The funniest thing in Mr. Spreckels' weird talk, however, is contained in the following:

I will use all my influence to secure for the United States a coaling station at the entrance of the harbor of Honolulu, any other location in the whole Islands. It can be made available at an tive this morning while seated in his expenditure of no more than $75,000. and the United States shall have fee simple of it if I have to purchase it and make it a present to the Govern teen men, who came to make up the

As Spreckels has bought up all the obtainable land about the lines of Honolulu harbor, as well as about the harbor of Hilo, and as he his been unable to get control of the Pearl Harbor waterfront, the African in the wood pile is painfully prominent. The scheming monopolist wants to beat Pearl Harbor and have the station near to serve. They are sent home when his own property-thereby, as Iago told the other fellow, "putting money ship Independence at Mare Island to in his purse." To do this he presumes supply their places." to inform the War and Navy Departshould be put on the extreme edge of the coast, beside a most contracted and inadequate harbor not at all landlocked and in a situation which all naval officers who have been detailed to investigate have reported against, and one which the Hawaiian Government has not tendered. I merely home in Worcester, Mass., for a short peasant laugh also. Indeed, why ordered a summary courtmartial for time. His leave of absence is for sixty shouldn't they, knowing the Hawaiian overstaying leave, the punishment for days.

joke of Washington.

It is unfortunate that word should scarce and times hard on these Islands While it is true that local prosperity is ower than it was during the flush times, before the passage of the Mc Kinley bell, it is equally true that people get along here very well indeed and are in easy circumstances, with plenty to eat, plenty to wear and the wherewithal to amuse themselves. There is no city in California where the average stizen is doing so well in a business way as he is here. As a rule, he contented to stay. Besides this, there is no country where a better reward is of the men of my company had been held out in various lines of productive to work, and who has a small capital to invest in the raising of fruit and vege-

It is natural enough for the Holomua, as a humble whipper in for Mr. Spreckels, to oppose the effort to cut off the Oceanic subsidy; but where that paper got the idea that its advice in the matter would be needed or heeded by the Annexation party is one of those things no fellow can find out. The Holomua may be sure that if a egal way can be found to abolish the take the initiative. The time has come when the Americans in Hawaii are as determined to shake off the monopolistic tyranny of the Agent of the Sugar Trust as they were his political despotism.

THRICE the branded cat of the Hoomna has mewed for Spreckels. Does it want the aid of his "Claws" with which to hang on a little while longer to its back fence of publicity?

STORIES OF DESERTION FROM THE ADAMS.

And Furnishes a "Star" Representative With Some Facts Concerning the Alleged Reports.

Late exchanges from San Francisco sugar next crop. contain much about the United States ships at Honolulu, some of it being true, some of it partially true and most Reduction in All Departments From of it utterly untrue. Take the following, for instance, which appeared in the Call of the 13th:

Vallerjo, Sept, 12.—In compliance with orders from the Navy Department at Wash-ington, another draft of seamen has been as-signed to the United States ship Adams, now at Honolulu. This draft was detached this or Honolulu. From naval authorities it has been ascer tained to-day that the present draft makes the fourth which has been forwarded to the Adams nce her departure from the navy-yard early the present summer. From the same is ascertained that owing to Com mander Nelson's despotic and tyrannical actions toward the crew of his ship his men are deserting at every opportunity, going in squads of five and six at a time.

Large rewards are offered for their return out knowing the circumstances which forced he men to desert, the Hawaiian police refuse to take the men into custody or assist Com-mander Nelson's marines in returning the captives to the ship. By reference to the re-cords, it was learned that the Navy Depart-ment experienced the same trouble with Comnander Nelson while he was in command of a ship on the Asiatic station, in consequence of which he was ordered home and relieved of the command. Since the Adams has been at Honolula she has received more men and Now if a protectorate is established her than all the ships of the entire Pacific

"There is not a single word of truth in the above; it is utterly false from commanding the city and superior to beginning to end," said Captain Nelson of the Adams to a STAR representacosy cabin on board that ship.

"The first draft of seamen sent to this ship from Mare Island numbered fourdeficiency in the crew. We were that many short of our complement when we left Mare Island. The other drafts are simply made from time to time in order to fill up the places of men whose of the Adams is largely made up from the crew of the Pensacola, who have been away on the China station. These are what we call 'short time men,' that is, they have only a few months more their time expires and of course others have to be drafted from the receiving

"With regard to the actual deserments that their Government works tion," continued the captain, "here is the official list from the time the Adams reached Honolulu to the present day
